15/91/CNL Public Questions Time - see at the foot of the agenda for details of the scheme

Mr Carpen addressed the Council and made the following statement:

- i. In the 28 days up to the general election my YouTube account had over 3,500 views with over 15,000 minutes looking at video footage of the hustings I attended, interviews and local council debates.
- ii. What plans does the Council have to provide online services such as digital video as a means of educating people about how local government in Cambridge functions and to promote local issues such as the City Deal.

The Executive Councillor for City Centre and Public Places responded:

- i. The Council recognised the growth in digital communications which was why the Council were investing in improvements to the website and working to improve our social media activity.
- ii. Digital video, alongside the many other forms of online communication, was a growing area and the Council would like at appropriate ways that it could be used.
- iii. It was worth remembering that there were many residents who did not regularly access the internet and some who did not access it at all. We need to bear this in mind when we think about how we communicate with all of our residents, within our limited resources.
- iv. It was imperative that the right balance was found between online communications channels and more traditional methods such as the local media and our residents' magazine. All residents were entitled to information about our services, whether they were online or not.

Mr Carpen made the following supplementary points:

- i. Important to acknowledge that freedom wasn't free, democracy was not a spectator sport.
- ii. Acknowledged that the cost of time, resource and equipment was not cheap and he would be launching a request for private support to help cover his own costs.
- iii. Heidi Allen, MP for South Cambridgeshire, had agreed to a monthly 15-20 minute interview that would be put on-line.
- iv. The same invitation was open to the local MP and all City Councillors to participate.

The Executive Councillor for City Centre and Public Places responded with the following:

- i. Acknowledged the on-line interviews would assist in improving the communication on local issues.
- ii. Thanked Mr Carpen for his comments.

15/92/CNL To deal with Oral Questions

When will the Executive Councillor be publishing the results of the review of policy on homelessness undertaken by the Lead Councillor for Homelessness?

The Executive Councillor responded that there were a number of dimensions to homelessness and the Council had been working with Officers over the last twelve months to both ensure that every aspect is carefully monitored and considered to improve the way the Council works to address homelessness.

The numbers of people sleeping rough remained consistently low which is due in part to the excellent network of partner agencies such as Jimmy's and Wintercomfort (many of whom are supported financially by the Council) that provide immediate support to those who find themselves in dire straits with their housing.

The amount of money spent on Bed and Breakfast accommodation for homeless people was as low as it has been for several years. No family or pregnant woman had spent more than 6 weeks in Bed and Breakfast for over a year.

The Council had been addressing the disruption caused to those who are already in housing difficulties, particularly families, by placing them in temporary accommodation outside of Cambridge. We were no longer using any accommodation in Peterborough and officers have reviewed their processes for checking that Bed and Breakfast accommodation is suitable and the process through which the appropriate temporary accommodation is selected for the homeless applicant. In some cases applicant's chose to be located outside of the city because of easier access to work and for other personal reasons. Nevertheless, where an applicant had to be placed out of the city it is currently on average no more than 6 to 7 days.

One key factor in determining the length of stay in temporary accommodation was the time taken to decide if an applicant is homeless under the statutory definitions. Officers had improved their performance in this respect but are still aiming to do even better. Over the last five years under the previous collation Government, the number of people presenting themselves as homeless had increased and the Council expected to continue to do so under the new Government.

The Housing Portfolio Plan for 2015/16 clearly set out our strategic objective "to deliver good quality housing related advice and direct measures to help prevent homelessness". The number of recorded preventions of homelessness had continued to increase over the last 12 months to 470 which is way above the average for the region.

Despite the continual improvement highlighted in the information above we were continuing to look at ways to further improve our homelessness 'offer'. For example, we are looking at the following measures to try and further reduce Bed and Breakfast usage and out-of city placements:

- i. Increasing temporary accommodation supply
- ii. Considering a revision to the Lettings Policy by introducing direct lets at the point of acceptance of homelessness duty rather than allow applicants to bid for a further 3 months.

These measures and the Council's overall approach to homelessness, including Town Hall Lettings are part of the review of the Council's Housing Strategy that will be submitted to the Housing Committee for scrutiny in the new municipal year. In considering the reviews we had been assisted by Councillor Robertson, Lead Councillor for Anti-Poverty Strategy and Councillor Baigent, Lead Councillor for Private Rental Sector.

2) Councillor Bick to the Leader

At committee the Police stated that someone on Petersfield Green having a beer or a glass of wine, but not creating any kind of problem to anyone, would remain perfectly free to do so despite the imposition of a Public Spaces Protection Order. Why therefore did the Leader choose to obscure this from the public, by wording the PSPO notices that are shortly to be put in place as a general prohibition on consuming or having an open container of alcohol?

The Leader responded that the Police were entitled to have appropriate discretion in the implementation of their own Order. The Police have been clear in their intention that they would enforce the order to anyone who was in an intoxicated state causing anti-social or intimidating behaviour. The objective was to claim back public open spaces that all individuals could use, particularly in the Northern part of the City where there was limited green open public spaces.

3) Councillor Austin to the Executive Councillor for Environment and Waste

Could the Executive Councillor identify what consultation he initiated prior to the recent installation of the new model of litter bins on Parker's Piece?

The Executive Councillor responded that a meeting had been convened and all members of the Council had been invited to attend, subsequent area committees had considered the issue and had raised concerns about the style of the bins. It was considered that the style of the bins was an operational matter and the new bins were of a higher standard.

The number of bins and dog bins across residential and open spaces had increased, the number of people employed to empty bins on open spaces had increased and the level of engagement had also increased.

4) Councillor Cantrill to the Leader

What is the Leader's view on the Grosvenor proposals for the abbey stadium and the linked sporting village in Trumpington?

The Leader advised that the Grosvenor's proposals for the Abbey Stadium and the sporting village in Trumpington were presented at public exhibitions held by Grosvenor at the Abbey Stadium and in Trumpington on 18 & 19 May.

No planning applications for the proposed developments had been submitted as yet. Any planning applications coming forward would be subject to due process including full consideration of the very special circumstances required to justify development on land within the Cambridge Green Belt. Officers from both Councils were working closely together. An application for the sporting village would be considered by the Joint Development Control Committee, whilst an application for Abbey Stadium would be considered by Planning Committee. Linkages between the two projects would be fully explored as part of any planning application process

5) Councillor Holland to the Executive Councillor for Communities

Will Cambridge City Council be pressing Cambridge Live to encourage more use of the Large Hall in the Guildhall by local schools and music groups than has been the case over the past two decades?

The Executive Councillor for Communities advised that the Council would certainly work alongside and monitor the aspirations highlighted in Cambridge Live's charitable objects (and the Council's contract with them) which include commitments to the following:

- i. The promotion of arts and culture
- ii. The advancement of education
- iii. The promotion of social inclusion through music and other cultural activities.

When run by the Council the halls were used by the Corn Exchange to support education and engagement projects with young people, particularly around the Classical Concert Series. As was shown at the launch of the 15/16 Classical Concert Series and the Cambridge Live Launch, this partnership with Cambridgeshire Music and local schools is flourishing and would continue to grow and develop following the appointment of the new Corn Exchange Artist in Residence, percussionist Evelyn Glennie, and a new partnership with the Philharmonia Orchestra.

Cambridge Live would be reviewing the ways that it engages with all parts of the local community over the coming months but the charity had inherited ongoing challenging financial targets for the Guildhalls and those targets have to be managed alongside its community aspirations.

Councillor Holland to the Executive Councillor for Finance and Resources

What is to become of the magnificent organ in the Large Hall which has fallen into disrepair?

The Executive Councillor for Finance and Resources responded that the organ would need significant expenditure to bring back into use. Estimates several years ago suggested it would certainly be in excess of £100,000 and had been recently suggested that this could be as much as £500,000 based on a restoration elsewhere. The allocation of funds for the restoration of the organ was not a Council priority.

If other funders could be found to finance the costs of a refurbishment, it was likely that they would need to guarantee that the organ would be used regularly for recitals, that it would need to be maintained and not allowed to fall into disrepair again. Ongoing repair and maintenance would need to be financed often as funders would meet the initial capital costs but not ongoing revenue costs. The use for regular recitals may also conflict with the use by Cambridge Live which could disrupt the letting income of the Large Hall.

It was difficult to gauge how much interest there would be in organ recitals and whether or not this would generate income to offset repair and maintenance costs or hire of the Large Hall on a commercial basis.

The Council's priority was to see Cambridge Live operating successfully and developing a sustainable business plan for the future that protects a diverse range of cultural activities. The lettings in the small and large halls in the Guildhall are integral to Cambridge Live's business plan and include everything from art events to fairs and weddings. The trust needs to build up its profile and develop the use of the halls.

Physically restoring the organ would not be a quick job and even if financial resources were not an issue, now was not the time to be contemplating major works that could disrupt use of the halls and have an impact on planned and future bookings.
