Hi Clare,

We attended the shop today (Tuesday 16th December 2025) at approximately 10:05hrs as a passing visit. There was one staff member present who my colleague PC Hepworth 492 recognised from previous visits. The staff member was welcoming but reluctant to engage in much conversation. She initially appeared confused when asked about the recent licensing issues at the premises. I asked if there was alcohol in the shop and whether it was being sold. She stated no.

I walked around the shop to check, and noticed a large amount of alcohol in the refrigerated area towards the rear of the shop. The cooler blinds were down and the refrigerators were switched on. The alcohol bottles were clean, with no visible dust on them so appeared to have been recently placed out. They were arranged in a neat coordinated manner as expected for sale. Whilst I was looking at the alcohol, I noticed the staff member appear panicked and begin calling somebody. The staff member again denied the alcohol was for sale, before providing the contact number for the owner.

Best wishes,

Tom
